The Grapevine Summer 2025 Edition 303 Greetings from The President

To our Plat 2 neighbors,

I want to begin by giving a big thanks to Bill Margillo who was hired as our pool maintenance person. His bid was one of three that was presented to the Board. Bill's bid was the best option. Both the pool deck and interior of the pool house has been spick and span. I also want to welcome Linda Downs as our Vice President. She has already done so much for our community by both serving on the Board and as Director of our Architectural Review Board. Congratulations to Pat Slesinski who was appointed as a Board member until elections in December 2025. Pat bravely stepped up to volunteer and we encourage the involvement of all new members of our community.

Just to keep you updated, Florida State laws have changed and we are mandated to keep certain items on our website as private. There is a "Homeowners Only" tab which contains private information only available to residents of our community. It is the only tab that requires a password. I urge everyone to use our website, www.delrayvillasplat2.com, and become familiar with the information on it. You should have received the password to the "Homeowners Only" tab by email. If you did not, or have misplaced it, you can contact our webmaster, Lisa Weingarten, at dvplat2@gmail.com or by text: 516 889-1105. Please give your name and address when requesting the password.

As a reminder, all homeowners who have not done so already need to replace existing mailboxes to one of the approved models on our website. They can be found by going to our website and clicking the "Roof & Mailbox Choices..." tab. If you have a previously approved white mailbox, you're good to go. Mailboxes must be replaced by the end of 2025.

The summer is fast approaching. I want to wish all of our neighbors who are snowbirds or leaving on vacation to have safe travels. Bring back photos and stories to share!

Tai Chi Classes at Our Rec Center by Carol Loftus

Free classes...Tai Chi improves balance, strengthens muscles, increases flexibility, and reduces risk of falls

Whoops, when did I become a senior? Having caught myself tripping on a sidewalk crack, I decided not to become another statistic of older people falling into a serious injury. And Palm Beach County agrees, having set up a series of free classes in Tai Chi with the emphasis on improving balance and preventing falls. This will be a long term project with classes twice a week, Tuesday and Thursday, right in our Rec Center.

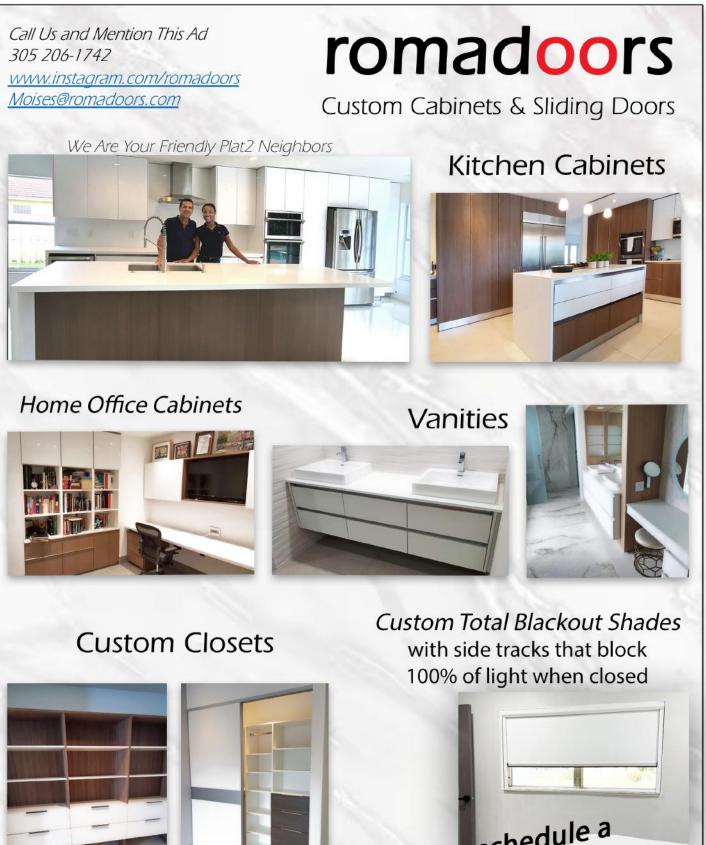

About twenty-five of us gathered in one of the large rooms with spaced out chairs. We practiced getting up from sitting, doing arm movements while sitting, and then standing and adding the leg movements. We had the chairs to help with balance if necessary, and there was a roving instructor to help people with questions as well as the teacher demonstrating on stage.

Is this class right for you? If you have good hand/eye coordination or are comfortable doing more than basic yoga, you might be happier in a regular Tai Chi class that moves at a brisker pace. But if you have a little trouble getting out of a chair, or don't feel confident walking, here's your chance to improve your balance and strength, free! Beginning Satureday, March 15th, at 11:15, chair yoga will be offered at the Rec. Center for $8. The instructor has a soothing voice. Each exercise builds strength and flexibility.

What a great job everyone has been doing. The number of violations given out has greatly decreased, and the majority of violations were satisfied within the first 30 days.THANK YOU!

Remember when working on outdoor projects to go out early in the day or late evening. And drink lots of water!

Snowbirds please have everything trimmed back before you go and you might consider having someone trim half way through the season. Don't forget white mailboxes must be installed by the end of December. If you are going to be away make sure you install it before you go.

In Memory... John Gougoustamos

Our neighbor, John Gougoustamos passed away in March surrounded by his wife, Aristea of nearly 55 years, and family. John came to the US from his native Greece and owned many family run diners. John loved to spend his summers in Greece and winters in Florida. He was the father to four sons, daughters in law, and grandfather to ten children. He saw the value and good in eveyone, and there was no one better to offer advice or support.

THE LOCAL SCENE with Ed Wetschler

Boca Raton Museum of Art's Sizzling Summer

Hello, Dali! And Chagall, Matisse, Picasso, etc., because they're among the modern Masters whose work is now on view at the Boca Raton Museum of Art. Here are three reasons to gift yourself a trip to BRMA.

Legacy: Mayers and Friedman Collections

The museum anchors the northwest end of Mizner Park, a quad bordered by buildings whose porticos create shade for walking from the (free) parking garage and outdoor seating for restaurants and cafes. This building opened in 2001, but the collection started in 1989, when Dr. and Mrs. John J. Mayers donated works by the above-mentioned stars, and then Isadore and Kelly Friedman donated prints by Eugène Atget, Margaret Bourke-White, Edward Steichen, and other giants of photography.

In short, Legacy features works by the 20th century's greatest modern artists — and it's 25 minutes away. Through Oct.12.

Glasstress Boca Raton 2025

BRMA's third annual Glasstress program matches renowned artists (e.g. A.I. Weiwei, Sean Scully) with great Venetian glassmakers to push the boundaries of glass sculpture. Their dazzling pieces might even convince you that glass is the new marble. April 24-October 12.

Side by Side: The Artist Couple Bernstein and Meyerowitz

The work of Theresa Bernstein (1890-2002) and William Meyerowitz (1887-1981) spanned 70 years' of art movements, but they're best known for portraying vignettes of daily life, both intimate (akin to Ashcan School paintings by George Bellows) and sprawling in the manner of Grandma Moses' scenes. May 14-May 10, 2026.

The Birds of Summer by Holly Krahe

The birdlife dramatically changes as we shift from spring to summer--gone are the colorful migrants--but we welcome some grayscale palette superstars!

The Swallow-tailed Kite (Elanoides forficatus)

Kites arrive from South America in March, nest and raise families, then return south in July. They are breathtaking acrobatic fliers. They flick and rotate those stunning forked tails, turning easily to sight and capture prey. They often carry their meals in their talons and snack while flying.

Kites are seen soaring and diving in most Florida counties, often over highways and marshes. Before the destruction of our neighboring golf course, we saw them flying over our community pool each summer.

The Gray/Grey Kingbird (Tyrannus dominicensis)

These noisy flycatchers are a summer visitor seen perched on light poles in malls and parking lots along the coast. They belong to the tyrant flycatcher group, known for their "sallying" out from a favored perch, catching insects mid-air, then returning.

Their call is a loud trill, "pipiri," resulting in onomatopoeic nicknames, like pestigre, pitirre, or petchary. Keep your ears and eyes open the next time you shop along Congress Avenue!

Black-necked Stilt (Himantopus mexicanus)

Stilts are a favorite black-and-white bird that visit our neighborhood wetlands starting in March. Their tuxedo-clad bodies are perched on humorously long skinny legs. Extremely vocal and energetic while defending their nests and families, you can hear their calls and see them flying overhead as you walk on Via Vesta!

If you are lucky, you will see newly-hatched Stilts at Wakodahatchee or Green Cay--they look like cotton balls walking on toothpicks!

Make a hand-crafted bangle and wear some bling to the beach!

Materials: Plain plastic bangles available online, a ball of variegated cotton yarn, charms to sew on, and a large yarn needle.

Cut a 60" length of yarn and begin wrapping it around the bangle. Make sure to tuck a bit of yarn under the first wrap to hold it in place. Secure the end with a few tight stitches. Use a regular needle and thread to sew on some charms for a fun finish. I bought mine at Michael's. There are lots to choose from.

Many of us think of our bones as just the units of our skeletal system. You may be surprised to learn that bones are living tissue that undergo change all the time.

As we age, our bodies break down more bone tissue than they build. This can increase the risk of osteoporosis, a condition defined by weak, brittle bones, which can make them more susceptible to fractures. For older adults, the results can be devastating--broken bones may give way to lengthy hospital or nursing home stays, long-term disability or even death. Here's how you can maintain strong bones:

EAT BONE HEALTHY FOODS

- Have calcium rich foods like milk, yogurt, cheese almonds, and leafy greens.
- Get enough Vitamin D from sunlight, eggs, salmon, and tuna.
- Eat protein rich foods, lean meat, beans, nuts and plant based protein.
- Eat bananas, avocados, nuts and leafy greens which are high in magnesium and potassium

EXERCISE REGULARLY

Do weight bearing exercises like walking, running, and dancing. Do strength training and lifting weights. Practice tai chi and yoga for balance.

GOOD LIFESTYLE HABITS

Avoid smoking and alcohol, and maintain a healthy weight. Being too thin can weaken bones!

Check with your doctor if you need to take supplements such as calcium, vitamin D, and vitamin K2 which plays a crucial role in both bone and heart health. Vitamins K2 and D help bind calcium to your bones. Without enough K2, calcium can end up in your arteries instead of bones. K2 can be found in fermented foods, egg yolks, cheese, butter, chicken thighs, and liver.

It is important to get regular check ups including blood work to monitor vitamin D and minerals. Have bone density tests, especially for women over 50 with risk factors for osteoporosis.

Eating right, good lifestyle habits, and exercise will keep you and your bones active for years.

> Electric Systems for Electric Furnaces and Air Conditioners

Part One: Staying Cool: The Science Behind Your Air Conditioner

Most residences in this area have central heating and air conditioning systems. These systems circulate hot or cool air through a system of duct work and registers to control the temperature throughout the house. The heating or cooling temperature is controlled by a thermostat which senses the ambient temperature of the air and turns the system on/off to maintain a set temperature. The system is usually in a heating mode or cooling mode dependent upon the outside temperature.

The air is heated in the heating section of the furnace by electric coils which can be compared to the electric heating wire in your toaster or toaster oven. The cooling section in this system is composed of a finned coil which air passes through. The coils absorb the heat in the air which is brought to the outside of the house by a refrigerant cooling system. The air in the house is recirculated through these heating or cooling sections of the furnace.

The refrigerant system consists of a section located outside of the house and the evaporator/blower section located in a utility closet within the house. These two units are connected by piping in which the refrigerant (freon) is circulated. This is compressor/Condensor a closed system in which the refrigerant is continually circulated. To understand the basis of how this system cools the air (i.e. removes heat from the air,) you have to understand one principal of physics. That is to convert a liquid to a gas you must supply heat (boil water) and in reverse to convert a gas to a liquid you must remove heat.

Evaporator/ Blower

The refrigerant in the cooling system enters the air conditionig coil in the furnace as a liquid. As air is circulated through this coil the heat in the air is removed (absorbed) as this liquid is converted to a gas. This gaseous freon is piped back to the compressor section outside the house. The compressor converts this gas to a high temperature liquid. This hot liquid goes through a finned coil. Air is blown through this coil cooling the liquid freon. This cool liquid refrigerant is returned to the air conditioner coil in the furnace to complete the cycle.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

A short story by Arleen Kessler

I heard that expression, the golden years, when I was 20. I laughed because the picture in my mind was so cute. Everyone sitting around a pool and sipping drinks from colorful glasses. The sun was shining and tennis raquets lie near the polished toenails of the ladies. Muscular men wearing sunglasses appear to be fully interested in the mixed conversations. Background music is playing. What a lovely picture the mind can draw. Waiting for this scene to become a reality took almost 50 years.

My ladies are wearing large straw hats to avoid the sun from causing a form of cancer. The bottles on the table are full of water (some flavored with protein additives). Many of the men have lost their hair and their swimsuits are falling off their thin physiques. The ladies' hairdos are stylish after hours spent in the beauty parlor. Some are even wearing false eyelashes.

Now I listen to the conversations. What was the name of the test you took? Is the medicine he gave you very expensive? Did your daughter call? Do you think she will visit and bring the kids? What will you cook? I need the name of a cleaning lady to get the house in order. Did you play pickleball today? I know Joe fell last week and broke his hip. I'm not taking any chances. Can we go to the restaurant before 5PM? I don't like to drive in the dark and there are Early Bird discounts. Does anyone need a 4th for Mah Jong? Why are there so many canes, walkers, and wheelchairs around the table? This was not in my picture. Lovely people who have gone through years of hard work and the responsibility of raising children are sharing these happy times pretending that the golden years are now.

Sorry, the gold is chipping and the years are getting rusty. I like my old picture better, but am so thankful for what I have.
